Fidele Luce, sees the endless chewing machine of globalised industry move from Australia to our broader design network in Northern Italy, with the release of a new limited-edition Large Monolith meticulously crafted from antique Italian Canaletto walnut veneer by esteemed industrial designer and fabrication director Federico Gregorutti.

As with previous Recall productions this work incorporates heritage and virgin timbers that have been carefully partnered with a colourful stained birch inlay. The pattern on the Monolith expands on the graphical language of previous Recall collections, developed by John Warwicker, to include a figurative full-bellied pattern named Fidele Luce, a charismatic talisman who honours the spirit of entrepreneurialism. This piece features four drawers and a hidden door on the front face, which are operated by using a removable magnetic handle that is also Fidele Luce; a feature which renders the Monolith an ideal object to discreetly store artefacts.
